Non-Cognitive Predictors of Student Success: A Predictive Validity Comparison Between Domestic and International Students

THESIS: Hypersexuality is new to the psychiatric world, and requires more data before reported cases can be treated.

METHODS
1. Review of published literature
2. Historical analysis of context
3. Analysis of online user groups dedicated to hypersexuality

FINDINGS
• The knowledge around hypersexuality is growing, but it still needs more understanding.
• The majority of data is composed of gay and bisexual men. A more diverse sample is needed.
